ABSTRACT

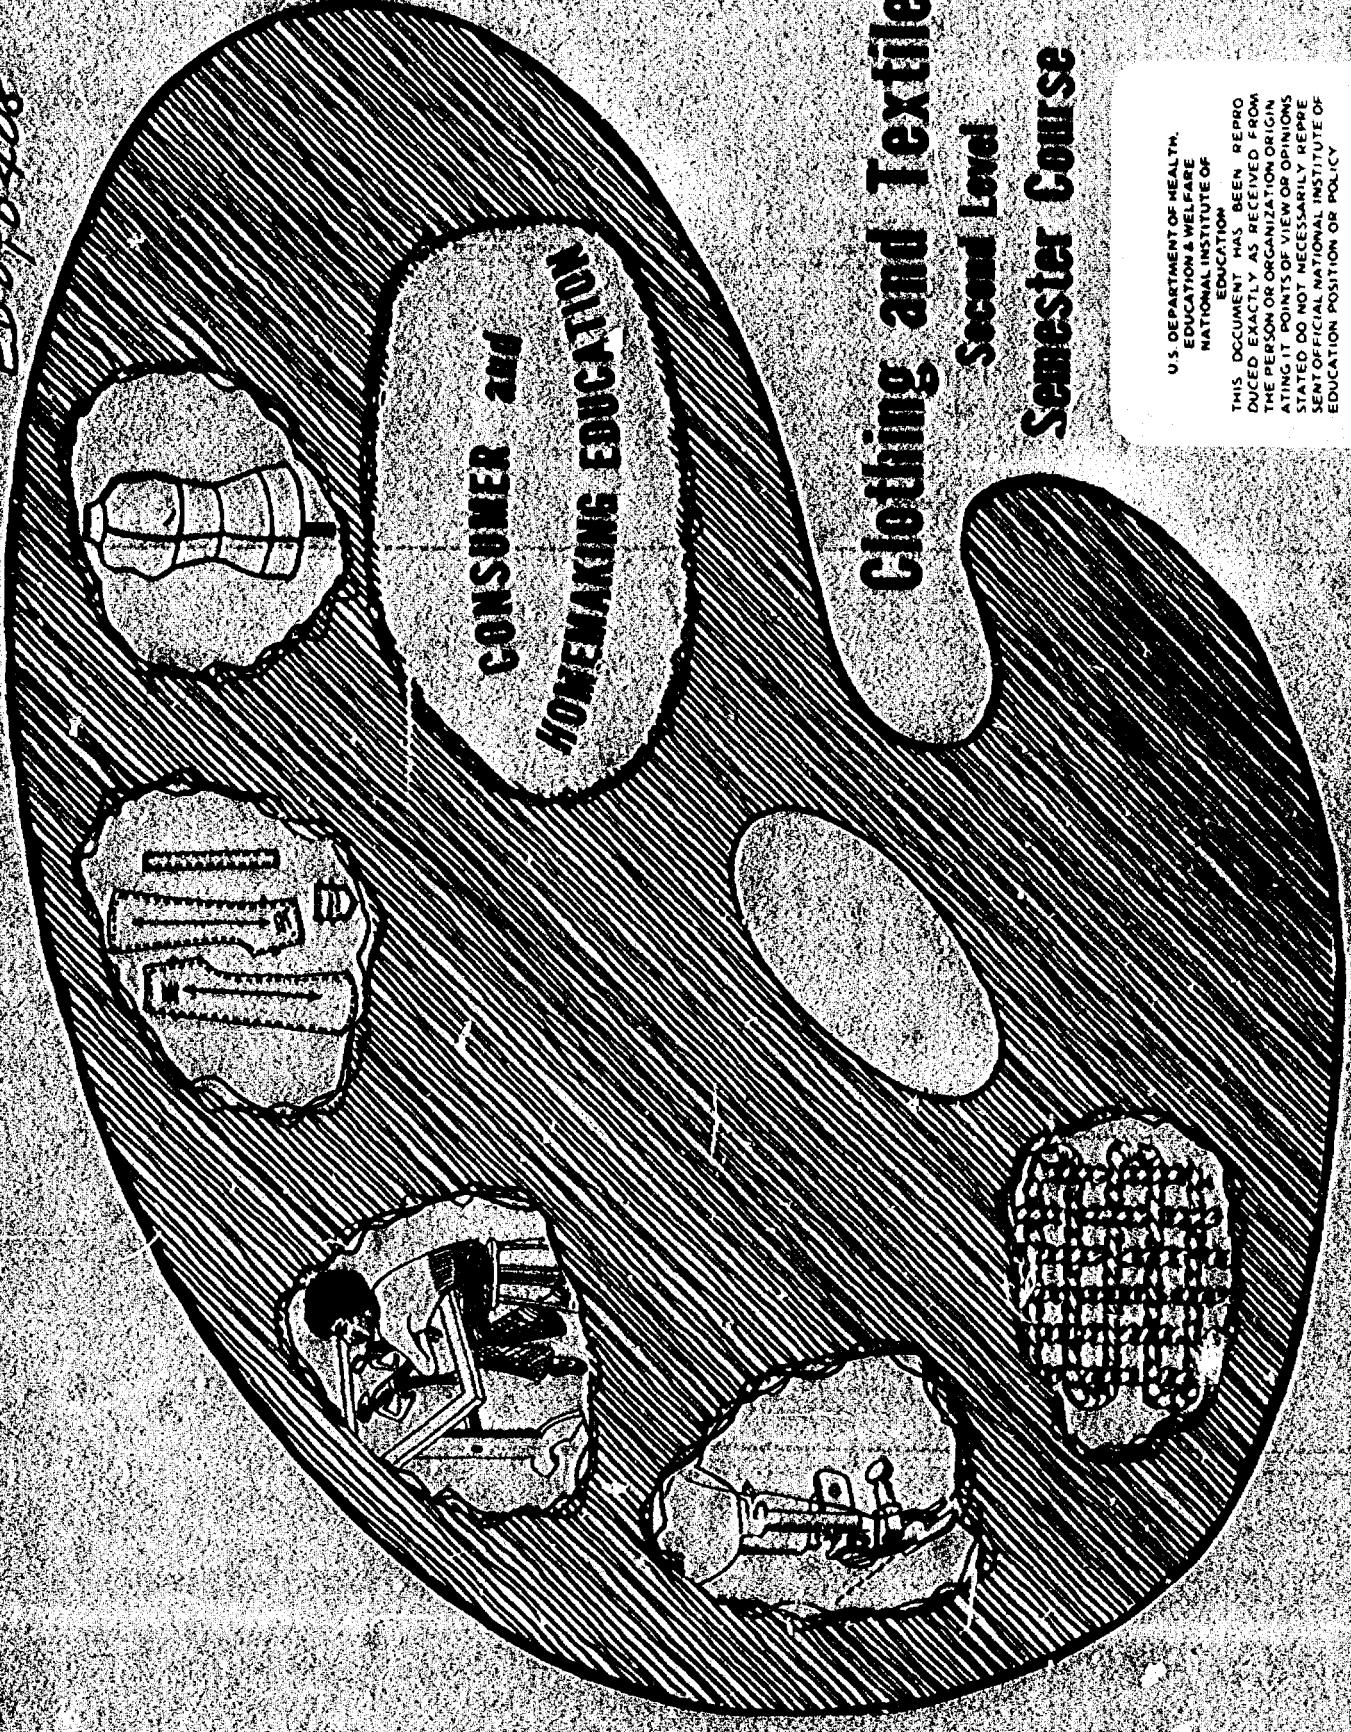

The clothing and textiles guide for a second level semester course for grades 10-12 identifies objectives and learning experiences with basic reference to developmental tasks, needs, interests, capacities, and prior learning experiences of students. It was developed for use with students who exhibited skill and a high degree of satisfaction from projects constructed in Clothing and Textiles 1. The concepts presented in the guide are: custom tailoring and fashion design, tailored clothing, fashion design, and modeling techniques. Under each concept, three columns list behavioral objectives, learning and evaluation experiences, and teaching resources. (AG)

Acknowledgements

The guide for Clothing and Textiles II, a second level semester course, was developed in a series of Saturday writing sessions and individual work from December 1972 to May 20, 1973.

Grateful appreciation is extended to the following persons who contributed to the development of the guide.

Mrs. Harriet Blanton, Florence; Miss Jane Hendrix, Aiken High School, Schofield Campus, Aiken; and Mrs. Mary Long, Keenan High School, Columbia who wrote the guide.

Mr. Evans Proctor, Principal, Chapin High School, for providing the Home Economics Department for the curriculum writing sessions.

Mrs. Susan Wright, Instructor of Textiles and Clothing, School of Home Economics, The University of Arizona, who reviewed the guide.

Personnel of the State Department of Education, especially the Office of Vocational Education, who gave support and encouragement in the development of the guide.

Use of the Guide

The identified objectives and learning experiences have been developed with basic reference to developmental tasks, needs, interests, capacities, and prior learning experiences of students. The curriculum resource materials serve as the instructional program for all students and are a beginning point for the teacher in planning for the learning of students who may as a group not represent the norm, and who as individuals will reflect a range including both sides of the norm.

With a variety of students in a classroom, it seems imperative for the teacher to develop a plan for learning based upon a prior assessment of the performance status of students relative to the objectives specified. Pre-testing of students and cooperative planning, in relation to objectives and learning experiences are recommended for the homemaking teacher. Many group teaching-learning experiences may be necessary within the classroom but some learners will require individual objectives and learning experiences which may be provided for in numerous ways, including independent study, use of self-paced learning packages, programmed materials, paired-learner teams, and learning contracts.

As the teacher becomes skilled in providing for the individual learning needs of a few learners in each class, she can extend individualization to other learners in a given class. A basic part of the task is for learners to become increasingly independent and self-directive in their own learning which can be achieved only through experience. Both teachers and learners have to learn to function in their respective roles in the process, but the teacher is responsible in educating herself regarding the premises and strategies for individualizing instruction.

Since a basic principle of learning is to start where the learner is, the teacher can be viewed as a learner in seeking methods to individualize instruction. Prior experiences with clothing construction activities, home experiences, cooperative planning, and FHA activities can be analyzed as methods for meeting individual needs. A comparison of the analyses with guidelines from the literature on individualizing instruction may help to decide upon a first step. Taking one step at a time is much more feasible for both teacher and students than is a total immersion into a new change in behavior all at once.

Behavioral Objectives:

Educational objectives are specifications of behavior outcomes or post-instructional behavior sought as a result of teaching-learning experiences. Behaviors sought include a range of intellectual or cognitive behaviors, feeling or affective behaviors, and doing or psychomotor behaviors.

By definition, educational objectives must have two components: behavior, and content or context about which, or within which, the behavior is. When the objectives are made operational for the instruction of an individual learner or of a given group of learners by a given teacher, two other components may be added to give precision to an objective. The two additional components are the conditions in which the learning is to be demonstrated and standards of performance to be achieved.

Making an educational objective operational also calls for stating the behavior component in action terms or in verbal or non-verbal observable behavioral terms. For example, "Know sources of vitamin C" is made operational when it is specified as "List sources of vitamin C" or "State sources of vitamin C." The act of listing or stating is an observable evidence of knowing. Another condition of the educational objective is that it be stated in reference to the learner. It is understood that an objective which states "Determine the best buy among three different size boxes of X brand detergent" means that the learner is to determine the best buy.

The objectives in the following curriculum materials are written in behavioral terms but are not fully operational since conditions and performance standards are not specified. The overall or terminal objectives stated for the major concept areas are supported by selected enabling objectives. Teachers may make the enabling objectives fully operational by structuring the conditions in which the learning will be demonstrated and the criteria or standard for successful performance. For example, the objective column on page 18 reads, "Differentiate between the basic methods of tailoring." The teacher must establish the situation or conditions under which the behavior will occur and criteria by which terminal behavior is evaluated. A possible condition might be specified as "Given a custom tailored garment and a dressmaker tailored garment, select the custom tailored garment using the criteria established in class. State the basis for selection relative to each criterion." Success in this example is the performance of the task as specified.

Learning Experiences:

A learning experience is the activity engaged in by the learner to learn. Learning occurs only through learner experience and through reflection upon the experience. The selected learning experiences in these materials are written with this premise in mind. The teacher can look at the learning experiences and determine her role as facilitator of the students' experiences so that they may learn. For example, the learning experience reads "Examine a dressmaker tailored garment..." The teacher's responsibility is to provide custom tailored garments and dressmaker tailored garments which represent qualities the student will look for in order to differentiate between the two types of tailored garments.

Rationale

Clothing and Textiles II, a curriculum guide for a second level semester course, was developed for use with students who exhibited skill and a high degree of satisfaction from projects constructed in Clothing and Textiles I.

Increasing prices of ready-to-wear coupled with the creative outlet offered through fashion design and custom tailoring have influenced the conceptual framework, behavioral objectives, and learning experiences in the guide.

The guide contains a wide variety of learning experiences. Based on abilities and interests of students, the teacher has several alternatives. Students may be guided in the development of superior skills in tailoring and garment alteration and renovation with emphasis on pattern modification, that is, the use of pattern pieces from a number of commercial patterns to achieve a desired design. A second alternative is the concentrated study of fashion design which will provide students with adequate preparation to design stylish fashions.

Clothing construction skills of each student should be determined through a pre-test. In addition, successful completion of Clothing and Textiles I, a prerequisite for enrolling in the second level semester course, can be used as an indication of student competencies and skills.

It is recommended that the teacher restrict the fabric used in custom tailoring to wool and wool blends. The teacher will be responsible for contacting local suppliers in order to provide the students with adequate fabric selection. Through the study of fashion design, the students will have an opportunity to work with other types of fabrics.

In order to make the teaching of tailoring most effective, it is suggested that the teacher make a garment for demonstration purposes. Step-by-step samples should be constructed before the course begins.

This guide may be adapted for use with adults.

Conceptual Framework
Clothing and Textiles II
Semester Course

Grades: 10,11, and 12

Concepts:

Length of Course: 18 weeks

- I. Custom tailoring and fashion design
  - A. Social and psychological aspects
  - B. Consumer aspects
    1. Buying versus constructing
    2. Recognizing quality
  - C. Career opportunities
- II. Tailored clothing
  - A. Methods of tailoring
  - B. Standards for a well-tailored garment
  - C. Textiles for tailoring
    1. Compatibility of fabric and design
    2. Selection of notions and trimmings
    3. Fabric care
  - D. Equipment for tailoring
  - E. Preliminaries to tailoring
    1. Alteration of pattern
    2. Preparation of fabric
      - a. Fashion fabric
      - b. Underlining
      - c. Interfacing
      - d. Interlining
      - e. Lining

- 3. Techniques of laying, cutting and marking
- F. Techniques of tailoring
  - 1. Outer garment
    - a. Interfacings
    - b. Buttonholes
    - c. Parts
    - d. Pockets
    - e. Seams
    - f. Collars
    - g. Facings
    - h. Pressing
    - i. Sleeves
    - j. Hem
  - 2. Interlining
  - 3. Lining
  - 4. Finishing
- III. Fashion design
  - A. Creative design in fashion
    - 1. Evolution and influences of fashion
    - 2. Competencies and skills required
  - B. Elements and principles of design
  - C. Introduction to methods of design
  - D. Techniques of flat pattern design
    - 1. Personal pattern
    - 2. Darts
    - 3. Necklines and collars
    - 4. Facings for necklines and armholes

- E. Garment design or redesign
  - F. Garment alteration
- IV. Modeling techniques
- A. Body line-up
  - B. Body movements
  - C. Model's stance
  - D. Rules to follow when modeling

CONCEPTS:

Custom Tailoring and Fashion Design

OVERALL OBJECTIVES:

Analyze social, psychological, consumer and career aspects of custom tailoring and fashion design.

BEHAVIORAL OBJECTIVES

LEARNING AND EVALUATION EXPERIENCES

Identify concepts to be studied in tailoring and fashion design.

Compare social and psychological values of dress of individuals.

Unscramble words which reveal concepts to be discussed during this course.

List additional topics of special interest.

Listen to a panel, which includes individuals from a range of professions, discuss the social and psychological aspects of dress. (Well-dressed student, model, fashion buyer—male and female, airline stewardess, nurse, waitress, etc.)

Summarize on the chalkboard values identified by the panel and participate in a class discussion of these values.

Identify individual values of dress and write a short report describing these values.

Compare purchased and individually constructed tailored garments.

View a bulletin board comparing cost, quality, time required, and individualized features of a purchased versus a self-constructed tailored garment.

Examine a collection of individually constructed and purchased tailored garments of varying price range and compare for quality, individualized features, time requirements and costs.

BEHAVIORAL OBJECTIVES

LEARNING AND EVALUATION EXPERIENCES

TEACHING RESOURCES

Participate in a class discussion of findings when comparing the garments in the collection and summarize findings on the chalkboard.

Read selected reference and compare the cost of a created costume for a special occasion versus a purchased costume.

Read selected reference and summarize advantages in surveying the ready-to-wear market.

Analyze career opportunities in clothing related occupations.

Research references to determine career opportunities in the clothing field and education and training required.

Differentiate between the basic methods of tailoring.

- 1. Read selected references. List and define the basic methods of tailoring:
- 2. Dressmaker (also referred to as contemporary)

Landry and Jordre, Creating a Tailored Garment, 3rd Edition, p. 1.

Examine a custom and a dressmaker tailored garment. Compare differences in quality, appearance, durability, and construction time for each garment.

Explain the reason for using the custom tailoring method for individual projects.

Summarize on the chalkboard requirements for individual class projects: collar, pocket, buttonholes, sleeves, lining, etc.

Identify the standards for a well-fitted and well-constructed garment.

Read references and develop as a class project a score card to evaluate a tailored garment. (Include standards for fit and construction)
